Progress Develops Pathways in Education

In the thirty-seven year residence of Vernon High School on Yamparika Street many memorable times have come and gone. During the 1965-66 school year we have seen a new era as we moved to the new, modern building in western Vernon from the old, red brick building that symbolized the spirit of our school for all of us. The pathways in progress have endeared our corridors to us as pathways in educational development, and growth and educational maturity in our lives.

Progress has given us the maturity to face the future and the flexibility to change with it. With progress comes changing perfection. Our new school exemplifies a new quality of beauty and determined accomplishment—qualities every student wishes his Alma Mater to symbolize.

Our high school days are filled with cherished memories—some that we remember better than others: that special homecoming game and the goal for state championship, "Byc Bye Birdie," the banquets, and the thrill of being a senior, and at last the wonderful feeling of accomplishment when that coveted diploma is placed in our hand.

Progress is time—and time is changing. The 1965-66 Yamparika Staff has tried to catch glimpses here and there of the past year, so that in years to come the activities of our 1966 school year will not dim and fade from our memory.

Administration

The backbone for the success of any school depends upon the successful and artful management of the administrators of a school system.

Exercising wise and careful judgement in all phases of school life, our principal and assistant principal organize and supervise our daily schedules with professional guidance in our activities, as we achieve the utmost in educational progress.

Our faculty instilled with thorough knowledge, mental vigor, helpfulness, and leadership, cultivates the right atmosphere for the inquisitive mind and the ambitious student.

As we moved to our new school, new classrooms and the latest facilities were incorporated with fully-equipped combination classroom-laboratories, a music section including a little theatre for the chorus with choral acoustics, practice gymnasiums. a cafetorium, and a beautiful inner courtyard all adding to the enjoyment and improvement of our educational system.

With the wise and helpful leadership of our superintendents, principals, school board, and faculty, our growth and progress in educational development is certainly as great as our elegant new school.

Principal L. A. Boyd and assistant principal Mr. Louie Holder greet senior students Leanna Earthman and Alan Brown as they stop between classes in the administration offices of our new school.

Always a smiling, friendly person, Principal L. A. Boyd takes time from his numerous time-consuming duties to help any student. With many responsibilities concerning the move to the new building, Mr. Boyd spent many long detailed hours in planning.

A busy and constantly industrious person, Mrs. Bess Goss, secretary of our school, keeps busy with various duties and answering questions for inquiring students.

Assistant Superintendent D. O. Fulton pauses from his busy schedule to visit with a few students.

Mr. Louie Holder along with being Assistant Principal is also high school band director. Mr. Holder discusses school problems with parents and attends to various other administrative duties.

Mr. L. A. Boyd, principal of Vernon High School, is always the smiling, interesting, business-like man whose personality wins the respect, admiration, and friendship of many students. Mr. Boyd received his Bachelor of Arts degree from North Texas University. He furthered his education by earning a Master of Education degree from the University of Texas. A firm believer that education never ends, he has taken various courses at Texas Technological College and North Texas University.

Mr. Louie Holder assumed duties as assistant principal for this year, in addition to his position as senior high band director. Mr. Holder attended Baylor University and received his Bachelor of Science degree in education from Texas Technological College.

Faced with the great responsibility of providing the best possible education for students of the Vernon public schools, the civic-minded leaders of the school board devote many long hours of study and planning to make our new school a top educational establishment with new equipment, facilities, and an informed administrative personnel.

Each member must have a specific knowledge of all phases of school curriculum, finance and athletics. With their combined talents they improve and replenish our school.

Board members strive in all the many tasks that confront them to serve as an informer between the citizens of Vernon and the administrative staff of our high school.

Superintendent of the Vernon Public School system, Mr. Harrold Beam served his first year in Vernon by accepting the giant task of organizing and arranging all plans for the new school and the move.

Supt. Harrold Beam previews his calendar for a busy week ahead. Always with a ready smile for any visitor, he gives helpful service.

Administrative Leaders Serve School System

Mr. Warren Pruin. Mr. Floyd Graf, vice-president; Mr. Bill McBroom, president; and Mr. R. A. Duke, secretary.

Students Build Reasoning Power in Science

Royce Bennett shows an avid interest in laboratory equipment as Mr. James Sturdivant, physics and chemistry instructor, prepares to assemble apparatus for a class experiment. Biology and general science students work in lab experiments each week with research for courses of study.

Explaining a problem to senior student, Dan Wright, Mr. John Eakes provides helpful, after class study for interested students. Mr. Eakes is the trigonometry and elementary analysis teacher. He also teaches geometry to sophomore students.

With a good humor and a ready smile, general science instructor, Mr. Charles Bursey confers with Mr. Bobby Wall, also a general science teacher, on the day's schedule and activity.

Mathematics Department

Geometry student Peggy Sullivan listens attentively as Mr. James Logan explains linear equations. This course is first offered to sophomores, and geometry class has become a symbol of sophomore education.

Miss Jessie Hillman assembles the kymograph, an instrument which is a part of the new equipment for the biology lab.

With definite instruction, she explains each division, and gains interest and discussion from her students.

Deaton by algebra teacher Miss Vena Moore while she returns test papers.

Abundant opportunities are offered to students to build reasoning power and increase their knowledge, of science and mathematics in the Science-Math Department, which offers two years of algebra, one year of geometry, and one semester of trigonometry and elementary analysis. For the business student two years of related math is offered. The mathematical faculty consists of Miss Vena Moore, Mr. A. R. Bennett, Mr. James Logan, and Mr. John Eakes.

A biology course is offered for the nature lover: Miss Jessie Hillman teaches this course.

A biology course is offered for the nature lover: Miss Jessie Hillman teaches this course. For the college bound student chemistry and physics provide a good source for the inquisitive student. Mr. James Sturdivant is the instructor.

A stern glance is given to Jack Moses and Russell Deaton by algebra teacher Miss Vena Moore while she returns test papers.

Experiment completed, class dismissed, Miss Hillman disassembles the kymograph and prepares another class lecture.

Rehearsing lines for her part in one of the Children's Plays, drama student, Lana Bolton, portrays a vivacious southern belle.

As an essential part to the curriculum of our school, the language arts department teaches students intelligently to express themselves orally, in essay, and in a foreign language.

Debate, drama, and public speaking are the activities used by the speech department to teach the basic fundamentals of public speaking. Interscholastic League events of poetry interpretation, persuasive speaking, and prose reading are included in the department's activities.

An opportunity to study the language and to understand the people of Spanish speaking countries is the goal of the Spanish department. Using audio-lingual approach, beginning students are taught the sound system and patterns of the language. In Spanish II, a more advanced reading and writing process begins as students improve pronunciation and correct grammar usage.

Striving for improved literary skill, the English department drills on the fundamentals of English—vocabulary, punctuation, spelling, composition, and the reading and interpretation of literature. An appreciation of reading was an important part of the schedules as students were urged to read good books by notable authors.

The faculty for the language arts department is composed of Mrs. Lois Selman, Mrs. Judith Elliott, Mrs. Saundra LeBus, Mrs. Patricia Miller, Mr. Buddy Stevens, Mrs. Jasimine Pace. Mrs. Alta Miller, Mrs. Donna Moore.

Language Arts

Listening to native speakers on tapes by using the audiolingual approach, Spanish 1 students drill on correct pronunciation. Second year Spanish students drill mainly in advanced reading and correct grammar usage.

Department Furthers Communication

Selecting a book to read toward English Literature requirements are Linda Ainsworth and Lane Rainwater.

Studying the styles of American poets, junior English students listen attentively as Don Roberson recites.

Vocational training is offered in an educational effort to train students for a vocational field as students work and learn. The clothing department is headed by Mrs. Nadine Martin. She teaches sewing skills ranging from simple blouses to dressy suits and party dresses in three levels of study. Mrs. Vara Boyd teaches the fundamental skills of planning and preparing nutritious meals. Responsible for teaching the arts of wholesale and retail selling and business responsibility. Mr. Robert Orr is the administrator of Distributive Education training. The Industrial Co-operative Training program, which is headed by Mr. J. E. Thomas, trains students in specialized trades and skills to prepare students for a chosen vocation. As agriculture instructor and Future Farmers of America Club sponsor, Mr. F. E. Todd teaches the fundamentals to boys who are interested in agricultural fields of farming, ranching, and dairying for practical and economical management in these fields. Through the student's association in the varied fields of vocational training, career and vocation planning is stimulated.

Alan Chandler practices his salesmanship approach while working in the shoe department at Montgomery Ward. As a distributive education student, Alan has a full afternoon schedule as he assumes job duties and attends morning classes.

Vocational Subjects Provide for Varied Career Training

J. R. Fullerton feeds his show hog which is a project for his agriculture class. An officer of the Future Farmers of America Chapter, he raises livestock with plans for an agriculture career. Agriculture students are required to have a project for livestock shows and practical experience.

Displaying their homemaking skills, Linda Morrow and Leanna Earthman sante vegetables for a casserole in the new, modernistic foods lab of our new school. The homemaking course comprises practical experience in meal planning and preparation, nutrition, child care, and sewing.

Cutting out material for their class project, two sewing students, Brenda Henry and Sandra Duncan listen attentively to sewing instructor, Mrs. Nadine Martin as she gives some helpful hints. Clothing students are required to make a home and class garment for practical experience, Child care and care of clothing is also a part of the homemaking study.

Elective Subjects Provide for Varied

Speed tests in typing class are an important part in gaining speed and in finger control. Gary Glover, Danny Smith, and Terry Graf give their fingers a workout.

Bookkeeping students register different expressions during classwork. Donna Lindsey ponders over an accounting problem while Linda Miller and Lane Rainwater idle away a few moments. W. L. Gray and Kay Milton seriously consider the day's assignment.

Carol Wyant consults the library dictionary for answers to the European history library assignment that is part of the social studies course.

Proportioning plaster molds, art students Dennis Walsh, Dannie Tobar, Bonnie Gains work on their art project which will be displayed.

areer Preparation

An important asset to any pep rally, the high school band offers a special enlivenment to the spirit-boosting assembly. The band program offers special education for the musically inclined student.

Offering a variety of optional courses of study, electives allow students to have some choice of study.

In preparation for a business field, students may take book-ceeping, typing, shorthand, business organization, and business aw. Mrs. Faye Clark, Mrs. Catherine Shivers, and Mrs. Peggy Bristo teach these subjects.

A cultural asset to our school, the four choirs and the Vernon High School Band allow the musically talented students to enarge their musical knowledge, and provide entertaining programs for our school and community. These departments are needed by Mrs. Elizabeth Eure as choral director and Mr. Louie Holder as band director.

Providing for students who have an inclination for writing and art, creative ability is tested in a journalism class taught by Mrs. Jasimine Pace and an art class by Miss Claudine Williamson.

"Over—way over" physical education student Sara Jane Snell receives instruction from her gym coach Miss Zelpha Booker.

horus members Steven Palmer, Steven Miller, Cecil Atkinson, and Royce Bennett rehearse contest numbers in reparation for Interscholastic League Contest. Much practice and work is made toward programs and contests.

Move to Spacious, New Building Brings Work,

Distributive education teacher Robert Orr and seniors James Gibson, Billy Coplin, Alan Brown, and Dan Wright transfer a teacher's desk during weekend moving operations, as teachers and students joined hands in a cooperative effort to have the new million dollar high school ready for classes Monday morning.

Seniors Sharon Enbanks, and Kay Milton transfer books into lockers in preparation for opening classes on Monday.

In an air of finality, mingled with sentiment and excitement, the twenty-seven year residence of Vernon High School drew to a close Friday, February 25. as students attended their last classes in the old building.

It was a day of anticipation and excited confusion compared to the quiet routines of regular class days. With a unified effort, students helped teachers pack textbooks, files, and equipment, and loaded them in trucks bound for the new school.

With varied and mixed emotions, seniors welcomed the lovely and spacious new school, but pangs of sentiment for the cherishable memories slightly dimmed the excitement of the event for some seniors. A long and memorable tradition of the old had come to a close, and an exciting tradition of betterment in progress awaits the many graduating seniors in posterity.

Packing crystal in the old homemaking lab, Mrs. Vara Boyd, foods instructor, organizes equipment in preparation for the move.

Butch Laxson and Doyle Close give Linda Frendiger a helping hand with heavy boxes as she stocks homemaking supplies in the new foods lab.

Formaldehyde, preserved rats, boxes, and white mice were sent to the new school in the biology lab. Dan Bond, John McWilliams, and Joe Lambert unload equipment.

Excitement, and Changes for Students and Faculty

Truckloads piled high with books and boxes were stocked by students and sent intransit to the new building. Here Joe Mark Russell Bobby Lyles, and Delbert Street load the cargo and make a final check.

Leotards? Drama and speech teacher, Mrs. Saundra LeBus, takes inventory before the move, and finds some very interesting things in her stockpile of teaching aids. A pair of girl's leotards were left from the senior play.

Boxes and more boxes! A misty and cold Saturday morning found an energetic group of students at the new building to assist in final moving operations. Here Dan Wright, James Bice, Randal Brown, Jean Frost, and Marvin Bishop are busy at work.

An enormous job for library workers, the transfer and organization of all books to the new library detailed many hours of work, Clifford Graf hands Linda Sullivan a book as she shelves the volumes.

Linda Sullivan and Danny Smith decide that drinking a soda from one glass is more fun. Drug stores and the Sonic Drive-Inn are favorite spots for couples after a movie.

"The Missing Links," a popular combo and singing group made quite a hit at Lions Den dances. Lane Rainwater belts out a popular number.

Stopping for a coke at the snack-bar at the Lions Den, Paula Neal and Sandra Holiday greet the chaperones.

A Saturday afternoon finds Sheri Boyd in rollers and doing her geometry homework.

4:00 a.m. finds a sleepy group of girls at an ever-popular slumber party. Brenda Henry is the "life of the party" and prepares to curl up for a nap, while Julianne Locklar reclines exhaustedly, tired of food and gossip. Sleepily, Lana Bolton cuddles a pillow,

After a busy school week filled with home assignments, work schedules, athletic work-outs, and club projects, students eagerly anticipated a fun-filled, relaxing weekend.

The Friday night football game got the action underway with a spirit-filled game, followed by a party at the Lions Den, Vernon's Teen Center. New entertainment was provided this year by two combo-singing groups, "The Missing Links," and "Kelly and the Invaders." The dances proved to be a highlight of the weekend festivity. At the Lions Den, table tennis and pool were a specialty for many of the boys; a Saturday found many boys hovered around the tables, seriously engrossed in the game. Also a choice spot for students to gather and rehash the week's activity, the Den added to school spirit.

Dan Wright was the Lions Den president: Ronnie Bourland was vice-president: and Lana Bolton, secretary. The class representatives were: seniors—Brenda Henry, Bob Nowlin, juniors—Ed Marsh and Susan Nowlin, sophomores—Kenny Brown and Jane Anne Lawler, and freshmen—Bobby Simpson and Sara Jane Snell.

Slumber parties rated high as the girl's favorite weekend party. The vigorous activities and unusual antics of these night-long sessions left some droopyeyed females the remainder of the weekend.

Saturday nights reigned as the popular time for dates as couples enjoyed movies, concerts, and plays, presented by the Vernon Civic Playhouse. After a fun-rollicking time, on the town Sunday afternoons, students faced the task of settling down to homework assignments and quiet study.

and not a bundled baby doll as it appears. Although the party is just beginning, Lyn Miller, Vikie Davis, and Leanna Earthman decide that a quiet gab session is more soothing.

A popular spot on Saturday nights is the Plaza Theater where Vernon High Students enjoy the latest in movie entertainment. Bryan Quillin and Leann Blevins stop at the box office.

A Vivacious Student Body Exuberate:

A "you-did-a-swell-job" pat is given to Butch Laxson (82) by Ed Spradlin (35), during a football game. Many of the gridders had game time idiosyncrasies that became familiar to all students.

Charlotte Townson huddles in a furry coat, trying in vain to keep warm at the homecoming game with Brownwood.

Lana Bolton and Mickey Moore give the Lions a hearty yell during an action-packed football game at Lions Stadium. Although the seniors usually directed the victory chants, they were probably the saddest at the last game of the season.

School Spirit

What is the heart of a school? With an abundant amount of energy, the student body is the true spirit of Vernon High School. The enthusiasm and warmth of the many sunny, personalities that are found in the corridors denote the life and activity of our school. A crowd cheering, filled with emotion and pride at the victory of a game, homecoming mums, the blast of a cannon, our band playing the Alma Mater—these signify the mighty lion-hearted spirit.

As the thirty-seven year residence of our school changed from Yamparika Street to West Vernon, the spirit and vitality moved with it to the beautiful and spacious new building.

The site of an empty gymnasium, remains of confetti following a game, senior parties, and graduation caps and gowns exemplify the meaningful and wonderful year that has been.

Freshmen grow and mature to seniors, and seniors leave the halls of our school, but the lion-hearted spirit stays and prevails.

Homecoming was perhaps the most heart-lifting, spirited week of the year with students joining in an all-out project of making the homecoming game and events a thing to be remembered. Students carried "picket" victory signs and adorned lockers with posters. The glory and excitement of planning that big week proved the vivacity of the Vernon High student body.

Serving as the football spirit booster for the student body, the cannon recalls to mind the excitement of a football game and the loud, echoing boom through the green as scores were made for the Lions. James Gibson maintained and operated the cannon throughout the season.

Draping the goal post with maroon and white streamers, senior cheerleader, Priscilla Dean, cheerfully enjoys her part in cheering the team on to victory.

Students Dream, Seek, and Prepare for a

Malinda Bell, National Merit Scholarship semi-finalist, hopes to become a medical technician; she works toward this goal by gaining experience in summertime employment at the hospital laboratory.

With plans of becoming a commercial artist, Mark Smith endeavors in every phase of art by working in the Vernon Art League and summer art camps and workshops.

Exploring the world of small children, Linda Bacon, an active FTA officer, plays with a group of nursery age children. Linda plans to teach in elementary schools. Experience is gained through practical experience and observation.

Successful Tomorrow

Armed with fantasy, intelligence, and ambition, students begin the search for their place in life. The many aptitude and vocational examinations which are given to students serve as a helpful aid to career choice, and as students reach their Senior year in high school, they search for the key for creative planning for their definite purpose in life.

Maintaining a positive mental attitude that whatever your mind can conceive and believe your mind can achieve, students have analyzed their talents, abilities, and interests; and armed with a sense of purpose have eagerly matched brainpower and ambition.

Summertime employment and workshops have been beneficial to many students as they seek out all phases of their interests. The cultural organizations and clubs of our school also provide a source for challenging ideas. Showing a vivacious interest, students eagerly tackle the abundant supply of literature on their favorite subject, and openly discuss or even debate on various new ideas. A visit to the guidance counselor has been a popular outlet for students as unprejudiced advice and helpful attention is given.

Some students are undecided about their purpose in life, but these students wistfully dream of a glittering, unknown tomorrow beyond the walls of our school.

Bob Nowlin finds the field of medicine a challenging goal for him. Bob looks at a model of the human heart; he enjoys reading the latest in medical knowledge, and is especially interested in heart surgery.

With a wistful expression, Brenda Henry, a dreamer at heart, ponders over an exciting and mysterious future.

No one could forget the fun and hard work of Senior play time when an enormous group of students reported nightly for "Bye Bye Birdie" rehearsal. Lana Bolton, who played Kim Mac Afee, practices a song and costume change while Mrs. Saundra LeBus provides helpful coaching.

Those rickety, old school buses will never be forgotten by the many athletes who made long jaunts to district games and sports meets. Billy Coplin boards a bus bound for the fieldhouse.

Memories of Old School Remain for Students

This scene is definitely a familiar one, as James Gibson and many other students made numerous stops at the soft drink and candy machines during the school day.

An abundance of everyday occurrences, amusing happenings, and traditional habits constitute many lasting memories that will remain for the students of our school. Everyone eagerly awaited the move to the new, nltramodern school, but a few spots in "old VHS" left a very special place in the heart and memory of our student body.

Broken glasses? Not again! Tall W. L. Gray and Mark Smith had double trouble when they broke their glasses at the low water fountains in the old building.

First Snow Fall Brings Delight to Students

With the first snow fall of the season, students donned heavy wool coats, rubber galoshes, and umbrellas in an attempt to keep warm, and with hopes of staying ontside and enjoying the icy whiteness.

Scurrying through the snow in a quick trip to the auditorium for "Bye Bye Birdie" rehearsal, Haley Burke enjoyed the snow flakes of the frosty morning. After a mild early winter, students welcomed the cold winter weather.

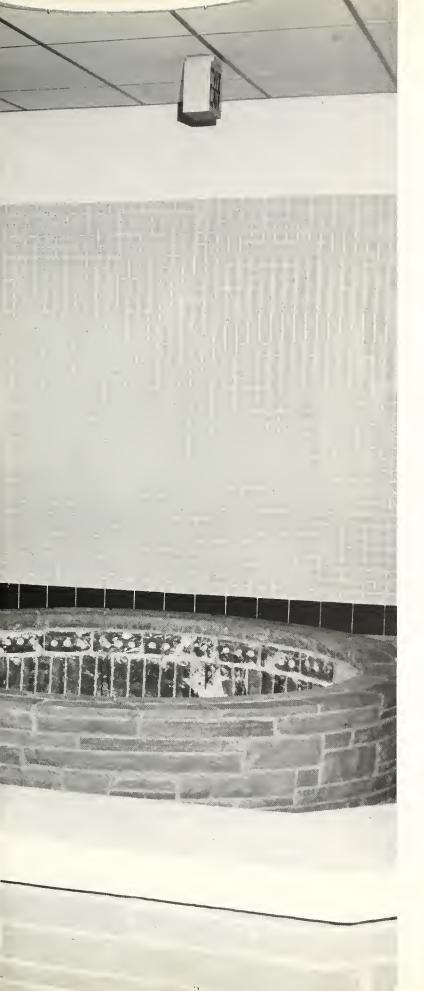

Proving her exuberant nature, Mrs. Jasimine Pace hurried to school to supervise yearbook work, and found the icy walk slippery!

Armed with several snowballs, Jean Ann Frost pelted Mickey Moore in a funrollicking snow fight before classes. Mickey, anxious to return her favor, prepared for battle.

Feature

Each year favorite personalities and outstanding students are recognized for their genuinely sincere attitude and cheerful personality. With a kind and considerate nature, these students invite the friendship of all who come in contact with them. They exemplify the hardworking and loyal Vernon High Student that is admired and respected by all of his fellow classmates.

Recognized for admirable personality traits. scholastic standing, citizenship, leadership, ability to work well with others, and service, these students endeavor to maintain and further the high ideals of our school.

Numerous personalities and top students have represented our school honorably. As special talents and skills are revealed, the leaders of our school have made an indelible mark on the functioning of progress in every phase of society from sports to the business and social world. As dreams and goals are matched with reality, we realize that life is changing—always moving forward to new and better things as in our new school we achieve improvement and advancement in a world of progress.

In tribute, we recognize these students who prove to be exceptional examples of all that Vernon High School stands.

Between classes, Vicki Bell, Ronnie Rickman, and Randy Gibbs stop to chat before reporting to second period. Students enjoy the new snack bar for light breakfasts and lunches.

MALINDA BELL

National Merit Scholarship finalist Malinda Bell served as reporter for the Drama Club. Among her many services and contributions in drama, Malinda portrayed Gretel in "Hansel and Gretel" and Ursala in "Bye Bye Birdie." Malinda maintained an outstanding scholastic record throughout her high school years, and earned a membership in our National Honor Society. Malinda was advertising manager for the Yamparika Staff.

Mike Brannon, known for his friendly smile and conscientions attitude, won the respect and admiration of students throughout his high school years. Maintaining top scholastic standings, good citizenship, and leadership abilities, Mike was a member of the National Honor Society. Interested in science and math, Mike was a member of the Science Club.

Exemplifying the industrious and ambitious student of excellent character and scholastic rating, the students selected for the honor of Who's Who are the top thirteen students. Named for the honor by a board of selection composed of faculty and students, the choices were based upon scholastic standing, citizenship, leadership, service, and the ability to work well with others. With great pride the 1966 Yamparika staff presents:

Class favorite nominees Mike Baskerville, Linda Miller, and Mark Smith look through English manuals in Mrs. Jasimine Pace's room. These seniors are trying to store up all the knowledge they can so they will be ready for their freshman year in college.

Chosen by nomination and vote by members of the respective classes, favorites were named in December. Freshmen, electing for the first time, named for the honor Judy Graf and Larry Smith. Sophomores chose Eva Sue Rollans and Gary Glover while Juniors chose Susan Nowlin and Ronnie Rickman. Senior Class Favorites were Charlotte Townson and Doyle Close.

Student Council Sponsors Election of Favorites

During the noon hour sophomores Larry McBeath, Bonnie Kidwell, and Harletta Capps talk over school news. Upmost in their minds is the new school building where they will soon be attending classes.

Freshman nominees Karen Flesher and Bobby Simpson spend the noon hour talking under one of the cedar trees so familiar to students on the old campus.

Excitement Mounts for Football Game

Excited nominees Linda Miller, Libby Castleberry, Charlotte Townson, Linda Sullivan, and Lana Bolton cheer as the awaited moment of the coronation draws near.

On the night of the final game, nominees Bobby Marsh and Priscilla Dean find time to aid each other with the securing of their mums.

Tri-captain Mark Smith bestows a kiss upon Lana Bolton to make the homecoming title official.

Runner-up Charlotte Townson listens intently as the final results are being announced.

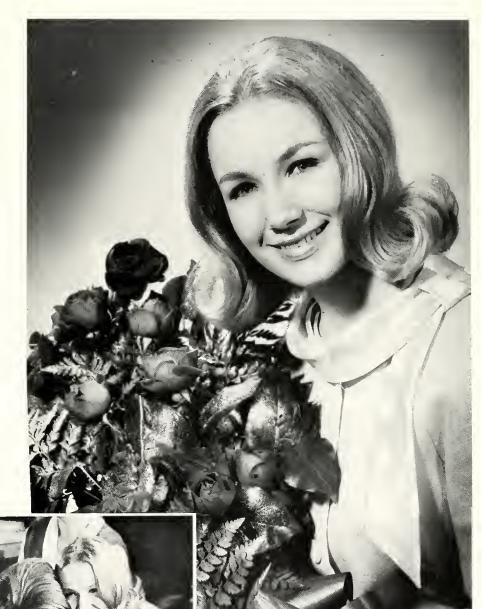

As Homecoming Court Is Announced

Homecoming activities started with a blaze of glory at a bonfire in which a Brownwood player was burned in effigy as students and townspeople alike circled the fire and participated in yells led by the cheerleaders.

Homecoming spirit continued to pervade the air at the final pep rally Friday morning. Lana Bolton, crowned Homecoming Queen, was presented to the student body.

A parade Friday afternoon was made up of cars representing school organizations with Lana reigning supreme.

Vernon held the mighty Brownwood Lions scoreless for three quarters, and it looked as if Vernon might pull an upset, but in the end Brownwood's power was too much and Vernon lost 13-0 in the final game of the season.

Bobbi Marsh Crowned Basketball Queen

Second runner-up Linda Sullivan is escorted by Doyle Close.

Sparkling Sarah Baxter is escorted by Ed Marsh.

With the ending of basketball season comes the crowning of a queen. The 1965-1966 basketball queen was Bobbi Marsh, high school senior. Bobbi was presented the crown, a bouquet of red roses, and a kiss by basketball captain, Danny Smith.

Chosen as queen by the basketball players, Bobbi has proven to be a popular and active student. Along with being a band member during her four high school years, Bobbi was selected as a twirler for two years. In addition, she was a cheerleader her senior year.

Reigning as attendants were Marilyn Herring, junior; Linda Sullivan, senior; Charlotte Townson, senior; Sarah Baxter, junior; Jane Anne Lawler, sophomore; and Sharon Michie, sophomore.

Junior Marilyn Herring, first runner-up is accompanied to her seat of honor by co-captain Butch Laxson.

Vickie Bell congratulates Bobbi Marsh as she is escorted by Danny Smith to the place of honor.

Mrs. Janette Marsh admires Bobbi Marsh's beautiful roses which she re-ceived from co-captain Danny Smith.

Special Valentine Assembly Honors Royalty

Hearts and flowers were the order of the day for Valentine when seven couples were presented as Valentine Royalty. Selected by popular vote and sponsored by the Student Council, Charlotte Townson and Danny Smith were crowned Valentine King and Queen. Chosen runners-up were Linda Sullivan, Mike Baskerville, Libby Castleberry, Doyle Close, Linda Mille Mark Smith, Lana Bolton, Keith Holder Bobbi Marsh, Clifford Graf, Priscill Dean, and Dan Wright.

Anticipation and tension mount as nominees Bobbi Marsh, Clifford Graf, Linda Sullivan, and Danny Smith wait for the Valentine Assembly to begin.

Proffering an arm for nominee Lana Bolton, Keith Holder waltzes down the court in a Valentine mood while Clifford, Bobbi, and Priscilla Dean who have preceded him applaud.

On our mark . . . Get set . . . Go . . . pantomime Linda Miller and Mark Smith as they prepare to take their places in the royal arch designed and made by student Council memhers. Other nominees register from the queen's court the gaiety of the day.

The Valentine Court applauds after the crowning of the queen, Janna Ford was crownbearer and Corey Ford presented the queen's bouquet. They are children of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Ford.

Sports

Our athletic department takes on a broader aspect than merely winning games or cheering a team. As our sports program strives to emphasize experience in ocmpetitive games and close-knit teamwork, it develops a deeper and more significant importance to the spirit and life of our school. Qualities of good sportsmanship, determination and ambition, loyalty and initiative evolve from athletics that are excellent building factors for strong character and sound conviction. Individuals with these qualities become stars not only among their friends, but also stars in society, in America, and in our great world of progress.

As new facilities are introduced in our sports department, tentative plans are made to add a new football stadium and tennis courts to our new school.

Vernon High School has been the training ground for many outstanding athletes who have made initiative accomplishment. With expanding times comes progress, and our sports department is certainly representative of constant improvement and striving for betterment, and always striving toward the building of the athlete's character.

Dressed in uniform, Vernon High School's athletes represent the various sports available. They are: Marvin Bishop, Clay Duke, James Gibson, Bob Nowlin, Danny Smith, and Butch Laxson. Football, tennis. golf, basketball, and track are offered to all boys interested in sports.

Coach Pattison Heads Varsity Mentors

During the 1965-66 Football Season, the players and managers have been guided and influenced by three fine coaches; Coach Pat Pattison, Coach John Blocker, and Coach Vernard Alexander. Under the guidance of these three coaches, Vernon has enjoyed the fruits of victory during the grid season. Vernon did not win the coveted district title, but it did place second and enjoyed one of the greatest seasons it has had in many years. Everyone involved did not only learn the fundamentals of football and the facts about the game, but they also learned the fundamentals of life and how to live with others from the fine coaches of the Vernon High School Coaching Staff. Each boy will remember for the rest of his life the many things he has been taught. The coaches of Vernon High School have strived for many years to maintain excellency, and they have certainly maintained that objective in the minds of the players and boys they have led, guided, and influenced.

Tri-captains Provide Team Leadership

Tri captains Mike Baskerville (71), Mark Smith (84) and Doyle Close (89) provide the well balanced leadership that a team needs.

One of the highest honors that could be bestowed upon a football player is the honor of being chosen captain of the varsity squad. Along with this great honor, there is a great amount of responsibility that each captain must undergo throughout the grid season. A captain not only must be responsible for the actions of the team, but also must be responsible for himself. Before the 1965 grid season, the varsity football squad of Vernon High School chose three captains to provide the leadership for the upcoming year. The boys that were chosen to lead the Lions were Mike Baskerville (71), Mark Smith (84), and Doyle Close (89). It was the job of these three boys to confer with the officials during penalties, to call the flip of the coin and to keep the morale of the team to a high extreme throughout the entire grid season.

Managers Play Important Role in Lions' Morale

Managers W. L. Gray and Dan Wright discuss plans for an upcoming football game, while they check over a pair of earphones. Both managers are currently ending their third season of being managers for the Vernon Lions and both should be commended for the fine work that they have accomplished in the past years.

Manager and water boy Coston Kays looks surprised as he hears the cannon boom signifying another touchdown during the heated Coleman game as he fills the plastic cups with cool refreshing water.

Perched upon the top of the press-box, Mgr. Dan Wright takes time to set the lens and light exposure in his camera while Mgrs. W. L. Gray and Coston Kays make sure the phones are ready before each ball game.

Organizations

From the earliest days of school life in Vernon High School, clubs and various organizations have added variety to school life with students energetically entering into the work of campaigns, drives, conventions, district competitions, government programs, and volunteer work.

Students' and sponsors' willingness and ability determine the effectiveness of the many worthwhile and enjoyable organizations which strive to set forth certain goals and standards. Through the association in these various organizations, students develop responsibility and adopt the qualities of good scholarship and leadership. By stimulating interest in various careers and vocations, the clubs endeavor to increase activity and motivate planning for the future.

Serving both the school and community, our organizations exuberantly support community projects through organization and hard work. Many clubs promote literary ideas and strive for a professional and scholastic organization, and enter into highly competitive divisional contests. With the wide variety of organizations, the efficiency and workmanship of each student and sponsor strengthens the goals and challenges of each club to provide bigger and more challenging horizons for greater progress in the future.

There were thirty-eight seniors and juniors installed into this newly organized society. A special program was held in the spring for these students and their sponsor, Mr. John Eakes.

Officers of the National Honor Society are: Doyle Close, president; Alan Brown, treasurer; Dan Wright, vice-president; and Linda Miller, secretary. Mr. John Eakes is sponsor of the club.

Service Keynotes Future Teacher Club Projects

Service is the keynote of projects carried out by The Future Teachers of America this year.

Members gave a Christmas party for the children at the Gertrude Smith Nursery, collected a Thanksgiving basket for a needy family, and took Valentines to a rest home.

Sponsored by Mrs. Lois Selman, the members attended a meeting of Delta Kappa Gamma, a professional teacher's organization, as guests.

Officers are Marsha Rake, president; Linda Morrow, vice-president; Brenda Henry, secretary-treasurer; Linda Freudiger, reporter; Elaine Owens, chaplain; and Linda Bacon, song-leader.

For the homecoming parade, members Linda Freudiger, Elaine Owens, Marsha Rake, and Linda Bacon decoarte the car to represent their club.

Congregating on the steps of Vernon High are officers: Marsha Rake, president; Linda Freudiger, reporter; Linda Bacon, song leader; Elaine Owens, chaplain; Brenda Henry, secretary-treasurer; and Linda Morrow, vice-president.

F.T.A. members sent valentines to a convalescent home this year. Sharon Phillips wishes that all these people have a very happy Valentine's Day.

F.T.A. members Diane Herchman, Diane Glover, Eugene Standifer, and Tommy Hawkins meet with their sponsor, Mrs. Lois Selman, to discuss plans for the Delta Kappa Gamma program, a teacher's organization, which awards a scholarship to the outstanding future teacher each spring.

Great Surge of Renewed School Spirit

Decorating the gym for the pre-game pep rally is one of the duties of cheerleader Jane Anne Lawler.

Sarah Baxter uses pom-poms in a hand routine as a specialty number.

Sophomore cheerleaders Eva Sue Rollans and Jane Anne Lawler sell junior Brenda Earthman the traditional homecoming ribbons. The money from these sales is used to finance the annual All Sports Banquet in the spring.

Sarah Baxter, head cheerleader, holds the bouquet of roses while waiting announcement of the homecoming queen. Sponsor Saundra LeBus has the mums which will be given to the attendants.

Marks Big Year for Cheerleading Sextet

Senior Bobbi Marsh leads into "Action to Win," a new cheer. . . . Priscilla Dean, senior and all-school favorite, dances a band routine . . . A weary Vickie Bell, junior, smooths her brow at the end of a spirit-rousing pep rally.

Six hard-working, vivacious cheerleaders set Vernon High on the road to a revival of school spirit in the 1965 football season. Countless hours of practice and planning; selling ribbons, pins, pennants and dolls; decorating the gym before pep rally; draping the goal posts before games; and always giving a spirit-boosting performance at games added up to mere routine for the girls in this elective job.

Sponsored by Mrs. Saundra LeBus, speech and drama teacher, the cheerleaders also assume responsibility for split-second timing and smooth operation of such special programs as the homecoming and basketball queen presentations.

Highlighting the sports year, the All-Sports Banquet is not only planned and carried out but also financed by the cheerleaders.

Selected by popular vote in the spring, cheerleaders attend a workshop each summer at Texas Technological College.

Wrapping up a pep rally, the cheerleaders form a V and lead the student body in the Alma Mater.

Library Club Readies Books for Move

Pulling cards of books to be taken to the new school, Elaine Owen and Linda Bacon.

Librarian helper Paula Neal presses call labels on books while Linda Freudigar types cards.

Need a quickie course in library science? If so, this was the year to join the Library Club. Made up of library assistants, the club under the direction of Mrs. Mildred Wall, librarian and club sponsor, redid call numbers, pulled from card catalog, pulled from shelves, boxed and moved some 4,500 volumes.

The twenty-four club members completed this gigantic chore in addition to their regular duties of checking books in and out, shelving, helping process new books, mending books, and keeping the magazine files in order.

Club officers are Paula Neal, president; Dennis Wolsh, vice-president; and Pat Poer, secretary-treasurer. Other members all of whom helped with the move were: Diane Hoybrook, Sandra Holliday, Tommy Hawkins, Brenda Henry, Kay Blackwell, Danny Young, Kay McBroom, Susan Wyant, Sherry Boyd, Karen Heard, Marita Key, Barbara Martin, Donna Lindsey, Mark Smith, Libby Castleberry, Pat Poer, Elaine Owen, Linda Freudigar, Dennis Wolsh, Luther Fields, and Linda Bacon.

Barbara Martin and Brenda Henry pack books in cartons for the move.

Taking books to be moved from shelves, Danny Young and Kay McBroom are the book truck "drivers."

Librarian and club sponsor, Mrs. Mildred Wall shows assistant Principal Louie Holder the newly done call numbers.

Publications Members Earn Quill and Scroll

Togetherness is portrayed here as annual members, Malinda Bell, Randy Gibbs, Linda Morrow, Bob Nowlin, and Alan Brown take time out from their regular duties to do a bit of tidying np.

Quill and Scroll, national honor society for high school journalists, this year had fourteen members, all of whom earned the honor through outstanding work on the school newspaper, The Roar, and the school yearbook, The Yamparika. Quill and Scroll members did such voluntary jobs as reporting for service clubs and doing extracurricular publicity.

All seniors, members included yearbook editor Linda Morrow, class editor Julianne Locklar, feature editor Leanna Earthman, and sports editor Bob Nowlin who have worked on publications for two years.

Other members are Randy Gibbs, Alan Brown, Malinda Bell, James Gibson, Linda Freudiger, Dan Platt, Nancy Evans, Bob Long, Keith Holder, and Bryan Quillin.

As members of the Quill and Scroll, Leanna Earthman, Linda Freudiger, and Dan Platt are found picking out their pin.

Linda Morrow, Keith Holder, and Bryan Quillin forget their Roar assignments and show that seniors enjoy clowning around.

Club Members Number Baker and Receptionist

As first year students in I.C.T., Carl Cannon and Roy Don Latimer strive to learn the ways of the vocational world. With their sponsor, James E. Thomas, they look through the pages of an interesting catalog. I.C.T. afforded junior and senior students both practical and theoretical training in a variety of trades and occupations.

Answering the phone and making appointments are only a few of Linda Carter's many duties performed in Dr. Tom Lindsey's office. Linda also was chosen as club sweetheart this year.

Butcher, baker, and maybe even a candlestick maker are members of the Vernon High chapter of the Vocational Industrial Club of Texas. Headed by John McWilliams, president the club's highlight was an employer and employee banquet. Officers attended all state meetings.

Industrial Cooperative Training Club is made up of members of the class in wholesale, retail service and selling, and is sponsored by Mr. J. E. Thomas who teaches the class. Students must be of junior or senior standing for eligibility.

Gaining both practical and theoretical training in a variety of trades and occupations, members work part-time each afternoon with cooperating businesses and industries of Vernon. Students enroll in two other high school subjects needed for graduation while taking the training. Wages received are comparable to those paid beginning workers in the same occupations.

Convening in Mr. Thomas' classroom before school, the club has for its motto "Preparing Today for Leadership Tomorrow." Other officers are Haley Burke, vice-president: Linda Carter, treasurer; Carolyn Cayce, secretary; Rebecca Barrier, sergeant-atarms; and Carl Cannon, reporter.

At the Purity Bakery, Haley Burke discovers exactly how those delicacies are made. In the kitchen, he is found making a roll.

Distributive Education Students Earn and Learn

Working during the afternoons and on weekends, members of the club train in retail, wholesale, and service selling businesses. Students are employed by local firms. Distributive Education students work in jewelry stores, dress shops, stations, and a variety of other stores which sell merchandise. Club members participate in contests to judge their selling ability and knowledge.

Giving a sales talk to David Brite is Janet Jobe who is explaining the operation of a hole puncher.

Dan Platt listens as Pat Snow demonstrates his skill in making a sales talk. Pat won second place in sales demonstration at Denton.

Typing the minutes of the last club meeting is Charlotte Townson, Mr. Robert Orr assists by reading the minutes from the secretary's notebook.

Jane Killebrew, senior distributive education student, takes inventory at Johnson's Jewelry. Jane works here in the afternoon and on Saturday.

Paul Rich watches Allen Chandler do retail merchandising problems after he completed his work. Don Hutson concentrates on solving a difficult problem.

Future Homemakers Look to 'New Horizons'

Co-sponsors Mrs. Nadine Martin and Mrs. Vara Boyd beam with pleasure as they consult the calendar to plan F.H.A. activities.

F.H.A. officers are: president, Yvonne Crawford; piano player, Brenda Dunson; Treasurer, Wanda Newton; parliamentarian, Linda Henderson; vice-president, Linda Dickey; reporter, Vicki Daniel; song leader, Sandra Beck; historian, Sheri Waggoner; and secretary, Georgia Adams.

Linda Dickey and Yvonne Crawford call the meeting to order with three taps of the gavel and the readings.

Open to girls who have taken at least one year of home economics, the Future Homemakers of America Club strives to establish creative leadership in its members. Sponsored by Mrs. Nadine Martin and Mrs. Vara Boyd, the club worked on special projects that included cards, gifts, and entertainment for the State Hospital; decorating the new homemaking department; and making a file of program materials. Programs for the year included careers, morals and manners, and leisure time. The club motto is "Toward New Horizons." Officers included Yvonne Crawford, president; Linda Dickey, vice-president; Georgia Adams, secretary; Wanda Newton, treasurer; Vicki Daniel, reporter; Sheri Waggoner, historian; and Linda Henderson, parliamentarian.

As Wanda Newton and Vicki Daniel glance through the F.H.A. scrapbooks, they discover ideas for their future meetings.

Future Farmers Practice Many and Varied Skills

Future Farmers of America inspect equipment in the old building. Those involved in the discussion are: David Lynn, Raymond Renfro, Lynnal Brannon, Mike Hair, and John Goodram

FFA members board the bus which will go to a hog showing.

Many hours are spent by the members of the Vernon chapter of the F F of A learning the care of farm animals, the conservation of national resources, livestock raising, and adaptation to the problems that will confront them as farmers and ranchers.

The club initiated its new members in the fall and elected the F.F.A. sweetheart, Sarah Baxter. The year's activities also included a hanquet, numerous contests, and an area stock show.

The sponsor of this organization is F. E. Todd, the teacher of Vocational Agriculture.

Demonstrating welding is Doyle Hall while classmates Robert Cook and Elton Perkins watch.

Officers of the FFA are: George Townson, secretary; Gayle Cantrell, vice-president; David Lynn, reporter; Kenneth Griffin, president; and J. R. Fnllerton, sentinel. Not shown is Mike Renfro who is treasurer.

Tri-Hi-Y and Hi-Y Exemplify Christian Ideals;

In the absence of the secretary, vice-president Vikie Davis helps Nancy Forbess, president, in reciting the motto of the club; "Clean speech, clean sports, clean scholarship, and clean living."

Mrs. Faye Clark Tri-Hi-Y sponsor, meets with Hi-Y sponsor Mr. H. E. West to discuss the spring conference.

"To create, maintain, and extend throughout the home, school, and community high standards of Christian living" is the goal of Tri-Hi-Y and Hi-Y members.

Delegates from both clubs attended the Pre-Legislature Convention at Fort Worth on the TCU campus. Five members attended the Austin Youth and Government Conference. The writing and passage of bills, electing of officials, and the fellowship with other youths of Texas is the knowledge gained from these meetings.

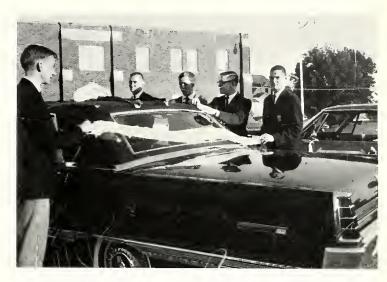

Chaplain Suzanne Henderson and reporter Susan Nowlin look through a Tri-Hi-Y program planning book after finding a devotional for the next meeting.

Treasurer Cecelia Greene counts money received from members as dues while secretary Nancy Evans looks through the minutes of the past meeting.

Service and Citizenship Keynote Projects

Members of both clubs serve the community and its citizens. The club strives to cultivate good leadership qualities in its members. Hi-Y officers are: James Gibson, president; Doyle Close, vice-president; Marvin Bishop, secretary; James Bice, treasurer; and Clifford Graf, chaplain. Officers of the Theta Omega Tri-Hi-Y are: Nancy Forbess, president; Vikie Davis, vice-president: Nancy Evans. secretary; Cecelia Greene, treasurer; Suzanne Henderson, chaplain; and Susan Nowlin, reporter.

James Bice, Doyle Close, James Gibson, Marvin Bishop, and Clifford Graf decorate the officers' car for the homecoming parade.

Officers of the Hi-Y are: Clifford Graf, chaplain; James Gihson, president; James Bice, treasurer; Marvin Bishop, secretary; and Doyle Close, vice-president.

Carole Priest observes the disheveled hair of Julianne Locklar. Other Tri-Hi-Y and Hi-Y members note the tangled hair.

Posing for the photographer before leaving for a youth and government conference in Austin are: Dan Wright, Nancy Forbess, Vikie Davis, and James Gibson. Not present, but who also went is James Bice.

Future Nurses Club Gets Professional View

With Mrs. Bonnie Phillips, several members look over new material which will help them make plans for their future club meeting. Eva Kay Velez, Margaret Dye, Lita Velez, and Janet Bachman find some interesting material that will be very useful.

To encourage high school students to investigate a nursing or medical career, the Future Nurses Club helps girls cultivate the qualities which are essential to a good nurse, to be of service to the community, and to excel in leadership. Sponsored by Mrs. Bonnie Phillips, school nurse, club members visit hospitals, hear speakers from the medical profession, and help with fund raising activities for such as the Heart Fund and Christmas seal program.

Outstanding among the club's projects is that of serving as volunteers at Vernon Medical and Surgical Clinic Hospital and Annex where they visit patients, read to them, entertain children who are patients help morale with hairdos and manicures for female patients, and help serve dinner.

Boosting a high rate of members who enter nurses training, and become members of the nursing profession, the club, will later this year elect a girl as "Most Promising Future Nurse."

Officers include Lita Velez, president; Joyce Hancock, secretary; Margaret Dye, treasurer; Eve Kay Velez, chaplain; and Eva Kay Langford, reporter.

Hoping to become well-trained nurses, members work at hospitals and listen to speakers. Here the officers assemble to discuss the new club project. Officers are: Eva Kay Velez, chaplain, Lita Velez, president; Margaret Dye, treasurer; Joyce Hancock, secretary, and Eva Kay Langford, reporter, not shown.

Before entering the Vernon Medical and Surgical Clinic where she works twice a week, Lita Velez pauses with a big smile.

Thespians Gain Experience in Dramatic Arts

Mrs. Saundra LeBus' desk is the scene of the gathering of the officers as they discuss and plan their next project. Officers are: Malinda Bell, reporter; Randy Gibbs, treasurer; Linda Sullivan, historian; Sharon Streit, vice-president; Mike McCauley, president; and Anne Hendrick, secretary.

"My Fair Lady" shown in Wichita Falls was attended by many of the dramatists. Theresa Robertson, Paula Quillin, Peggy Greshel, Trudy Clayton, Rob Farrell, and Rhett Gideon are caught, just before boarding the bus to leave.

Cooperating with the American Association of University Women, the Drama Club this year produced "Hansel and Gretel" for city and county elementary schools. In addition, the club gave a program for the Optimist Club, helped with the Vernon Civic Playhouse, and did a one-act play for University Interscholastic League. Sponsored by Mrs. Saundra LeBus, dramatists also helped with the March of Dimes.

Officers include Mike McCauley, president; Sharon Streit, vice-president; Anne Hendrick, secretary; Randy Gibbs, treasurer; Linda Sullivan, historian; and Malinda Bell, reporter.

Helping to aid the March of Dimes drive, Cheryl Wright, Marilyn Herring, and Sharon Michie make plans for a car wash.

Before the performance of "Hansel and Gretel", Rhett Gideon and Malinda Bell skim their lines with Mrs. Saundra LeBus,

One Dozen Staffers Produce Annual;

"Rats, rats, and more rats" are combed into Susan Nowlin's hair whenever she takes a break from 'organizing' the organization section.

Mrs. Jasimine Pace, yearbook sponsor, explains a comical error to editor Linda Morrow, and layout coordinator Randy Gibbs disgustedly looks on. Linda, who was feature editor of the 1965 Yamparika, and Randy are responsible for all general planning and double-checking each page hefore it goes to the publisher.

Smiling, Craig Parham does the work in the 'black bag' which is always given to the junior photographer. Craig develops and prints many of the pictures he takes for the annual.

Work-weary class editor Julianne Locklar and her assistants, 'posing' Marsha Rake and 'slips and more slips' Sharon Michie shared responsibility for photos of 716 students.

Memories Recorded in Pictures and Words

James Gibson prepares to type a triplicate as advertising manager Malinda Bell completes a layout. Bob Nowlin, photographer and sports editor, patiently awaits assignment for needed pictures.

Caught between two buildings, the old and the new members of the Yamparika annual staff worked to meet deadlines, took pictures, planned pages, wrote copy, sold advertisements, and moved all their materials a few days before a deadline.

With four hold-over members from the staff of the 1965 class-V state championship yearbook in the Texas High School Press Association contest at work, the staff worked toward high quality in a memory book to bring to life Vernon High School through words and pictures, of both curricular and extracurricular events.

Entirely self-supporting through sale of advertisements and subscriptions, the Yamparika has a staff of twelve members, including eight seniors, three juniors, and one sophomore. This is the first year a sophomore has been a member of the staff.

The members of the 1965-1966 annual staff include Linda Morrow, Randy Gibbs, James Gibson, Leanna Earthman, Julianne Locklar, Bob Nowlin, Alan Brown, Marsha Rake, Craig Parham, Susan Nowlin, and Sharon Michie.

Business manager Alan Brown sorts receipts from the annual sale. Along with managing the sale, Alan keeps books, supervises annual distribution and compiles the index for publication.

Features and organization editor Leanna Earthman pauses from the job of cropping pictures, drawing layouts, and writing copy. This is just one of the many pages that has to be ready for the December 15 deadline.

Journalism Class Edits Self-Supporting,

Betsy Palmer, Bryan Quillin, Suzanne Henderson, and Bob Long appear quite happy as they look over their first edition of the Roar and the Roto, a magazine supplement.

From sale of ads, reporting, copyreading, and headline writing, to editing and distribution, every task involved in publication of the Roar, bi-weekly "Voice of Vernon High School", is performed at some time by each member of the first-year journalism class.

Under a system of rotating editorships, each of the eleven class members edits one issue with Linda Morrow acting as student advisor.

Entirely self-supporting through sale of advertisements, the Roar is a member of Texas High School Press Association from which it received an All-Texas Honor Rating and Interscholastic League Press Conference.

Shortly before moving into a publications suite in the new school building at mid-term, the class published a special issue featuring photographs and stories about the modern high school.

Members of the class are reporters for the Optimist and Lions Clubs and sports reporters for radio station KTRN during football season. Linda Morrow is teen columnist for the Vernon Daily Record, and two class members, Suzanne Henderson and Betsy Palmer, act as disc jockeys and advertising salesmen for a weekly program, "Lion Time", on radio station KVWC.

Mrs. Jasimine Pace heads the team of workers as Journalism teacher and Roar sponsor.

On her way to sell newspapers, Linda Freudiger stops and receives change from Suzanne Henderson, business manager.

Bi-Weekly Newspaper for Student Body

Linda Morrow, student advisor, and Mrs. Jasimine Pace, journalism teacher and Roar sponsor, make a final check on copy before the Roar is taken to the Vernon Times for printing. Other staff members work on all phases of production.

Advertising managers Linda Bacon and Eugene Standifer search diligently for mats to fill their advertising layout.

Aspiring journalists have varied duties before papers can be published and distributed. Dan Platt interviews Kathy Tarbet for a special article about the years she spent in Australia, Keith Holder tries to think of an amusing feature story, and Elaine Owens helps Nancy Evans fold newly printed issue.

Mr. Louie Holder motions students to begin after explaining a tricky note sequence.

Providing a lively and spirited addition to any pep rally, the talented Vernon High School band, under the direction of Mr. Louie Holder furnished the enlivenment and excitement at half-time in football season. The seventy-two member band entered into scholastic and interscholastic league competition, including a solo and ensemble contest in March, and a University Interscholastic League Concert and sight reading contest in April in Denton.

Led by senior drum major, Keith Holder, the maroon and white uniformed band is a picturesque sight on the football green during half-time performances. With top acoustical equipment in our new building, the band has three practice rooms and new sound facilities for the director. With late rehearsals and extra planning, the marching band drills before school in preparation for marching contests and half-time shows.

In Promoting School Spirit, Concerts

Freshmen students were included in the band program for the first time in six years, as the nine grade became part of our school.

Aside from busy scholastic engagements, the band presented a Spring Concert. Enjoying various activities as an organization, the band had a spring banquet, and made a trip to Quartz Mountain State Park at the end of the year.

Steven Miller represented the band in the All-Regional Band competition.

Mr. Holder devotes his enthusiasm and boundless energy to the band with a talented and competent styled effort, creating an individualistic style for our band. With a clever wit, Mr. Holder's musicianship and interest in his band members inspires the efforts and accomplishments of our band.

Mr. Holder holds both Bachelor and Master of Education degrees from Texas Technological College. Officers of the band are: Dennis Arnold, assistant drum major; Keith Holder, drnm major; Randy Riall, freshman representative; Alan Brown, librarian; Bob Nowlin, president; Sharon Byrd, vice-president; Phyllis Garner, secretary; Mary Brown, reporter, and Cindy Burdett.

Best Voices Sing in A Cappella Chorus

Sparked by new uniforms consisting of smart, black, wool blazers, crisp white shirts and bright red ties, the A Cappella Chorus is the pride of the vocal music department. Starting the year with a performance for the Vernon Rotary Club, the A Cappella Chorus represents the best 62 voices of 225 students enrolled in the choral program. Under direction of Mrs. Elizabeth Eure, the Chorus gave a fall concert, the traditional Christmas program and a Spring Concert after moving into the new high school building.

Taking time out for a Choral Clinic at Midwestern University in Wichita Falls, the A Cappella Chorus also performed at the senior class play, "Bye-Bye Birdie", and sang at Baccalaureate.

A graduate of North Texas State University, Mrs. Eure plans and rehearses various groups from the Chorus for civic club programs. She also helped members with a candy sale to add to money from paid programs for new uniform funds.

Mrs. Elizabeth Enre, choral director, rehearses her choir in the old music hall.

Performances Given for School and Town

Singing numbers ranging from "Dry Bones" to "The Sweetheart Tree" to "The Halleluja Chorus" from Handel's "Messiah", the A Cappella Chorus boasts one All-State Chorus member, Steven Palmer, and sixteen All-Region Chorus members. All-Region singers include: Mike Ashby, Libby Castleberry, Lonnie Edmonds, Anne Hendrick, Kathy Tarbet, Julie Waller, Royce Bennett, Don Roberson, Cheryl Wright, Linda Arnold, George Glazner, Stephen Miller, Joe Bob Richie, Suzanne Thomas, Ja Leta Tidmore, and Steven Palmer.

After spending the first semester in the Old Band Hall and surviving a near cave-in from heavy snow on the roof, the choral department found itself in modern new quarters at the new building at the end of the year.

With its smart uniforms, its spirited singing, and its renown for spurring singers to musical careers, the A Cappella Chorus remains a goal for members of the Mixed Chorus, Freshman Chorus, and Girl's Chorus.

Officers of the A Cappella Choir are: Don Roberson, vice-president; Sherry Boyd, reporter; Kathy Tarbet and Cheryl Wright, wardrobe managers; Royce Bennett, librarian; Libby Castleberry, secretary; and Lonnie Edmonds, president.

Mixed Chorus Serves as Training Ground

Composed of students of freshman through senior classification, the Mixed Chorus gave a program at the Vernon Branch of the Wichita Falls State Hospital, participated in the Christmas choral program, and sang at the fall chorus program.

A training choir from which members of A Cappella Chorus are chosen, the Mixed Chorus is made up of continually improving voices.

Accompanist for the Mixed Chorus, Cecelia Greene takes time to practice the music which the choir sings.

Highlighting the school year for the Freshman Chorus was performing at the Drama Club-American Association of University Women sponsored presentation of "Hansel and Gretel". A part of high school for the first time, the group sang tunes from the operetta during the performance and Christmas carols between acts. The Freshman Chorus also is directed by Mrs. Elizabeth Eure.

New All-Girl's Chorus Formed This Year

For the first time this year, Vernon High has one all-girl chorus. Directed by Mrs. Eure, it is made up of girls of all classifications in high school.

George Glazner, Royce Bennett, Mike Ashby, Stephen Miller, Joe Bob Richie, and Steven Palmer are the six boys who make up the Travelers, an ensemble which performs at Civic Clubs and for school programs.

Jiving Stage Band Adds Musical Variety

Members of the stage band are: Anne Hendrick, piano; W. L. Gray, string bass; Dennis Arnold, saxophone; Tommy Hawkins, trumpet; Keith Holder, saxophone; Lita Velez, trombone; Donald Bohannon, trumpet; Terry Young, saxophone; Alan Brown, trumpet; Craig Parham, trombone; Allen Chandler, trumpet; Debbie Street, baritone saxophone; and Danny Barnes, drums.

Clarinets, cornets, cymbals, drums, and French horns compose this section of practicing band students.

Incorporating musical talent and modernistic style. the Stage Band plays the kind of music V.H.S. students like to hear. Directed by Mr. Holder, the Stage Band defies lady fortune with a membership of thirteen—three girls and ten boys. These Masters of swinging style participated this year in the Doc Severnson Stage Band Clinic at Pampa and in the spring the University Interscholastic League contest in Denton. They also performed before local organizations.

Out of Town Trips, Practice Sessions Enjoyed

Majorettes Sandra Duncan and Inell Burkhart pose with head majorette Judy Upton for the photographer. They perform during half time at football games with the marching band.

Band trips are great fun for its members. Mary Brown's favorite pastime while riding on the bus is rubbing Alan Brown's back.

Band members intently play their instruments. A variety of instruments are played by the members: French horns, basses, and saxophones.

Kathy and Lonnie Named Sweetheart and Beau

Lonnie Edmonds looks over a new selection of music which he has taken from the file.

Kathy Tarbet and Lonnie Edmonds

Kathy Tarbet and Lonnie Edmonds were elected by the members of the 1966 chorns as Choral Sweetheart and Beau. The presentation was announced at the spring program of the chorns.

Sherry Pennington Named Band Sweetheart

It is a common sight to all to see Drum major Keith Holder enjoying one of his many interests—that of playing the piano.

Sherry Pennington and Keith Holder

As a result of balloting by the Vernon High School Band, Sherry Pennington won the honor of being chosen 1965 Band Sweetheart. As a climax of the Vernon-Herschi football game, she was crowned by Drum Major Keith Holder. Specially prepared music and formation were featured during this period.

While working in a floral shop, Sherry Pennington exhibits a floral arrangement which she has made.

Classes

A student body en masse! Entering freshmen—awed, bewildered, confused, yet excited!

Sophomores—eager, accustomed to confusion, and anxious for the whirl of high school activities.

Juniors—maturing, conscious of senior rings and anticipating their senior year!

Seniors—the leaders of the followers, riproaring but sentimental at the end, and proud to be Vernon High graduates.

This is our student body—yet only a small fraction of the progressive youths of our nation who strive daily toward a goal and a destination. These students fill the corridors of our school with spirit and vitality and constitute the meaning and values of school life. Operating in a unified effort, the students and faculty make school life one of rich reward and enjoyment by allowing progress to steer the direction for self-improvement and maturity.

The many students who have studied here since our school's beginning have left a special mark in the history of our educational program and the organizations that they organized and made successful. Each graduating class has left special signs for the following classes to follow on our pathway in educational development and maturity. As we travel along this pathway, we shall meet the dangers and pitfalls with more resolute hope because of their passing.

Each student in every class has a special memory that made the year of 1966 special; we, as members of the Yamparika staff, have attempted to catch a glimpse of these occurrences.

Pausing in front of the trophy case at our new school are Ed Spradlin, a sophomore, Julianne Locklar, a senior, Marsha Rake, a junior, and Mike Malone, a freshman.

Seniors Set Standards for 716 Students

The Senior Class officers for 1966 were: Mark Smith, president, Dan Wright, treasurer, Clay Duke, vice president, Linda Morrow, reporter, and Linda Miller, secretary. These officers set the standards for the class activities.

Heading the Senior Class of 1966, a quintet of officers led during selection of invitations, a fund raising production of "Bye Bye Birdie," and plans for Senior day. The class rounded out the year with parties, baccalaureate and graduation.

The Class sponsors were: Mr. John Eakes, Mr. H. E. West, Mrs. Charles Le-Bus, and Mrs. Faye Clark.

A memory laden senior year can best be described as traditional. Seniors found themselves following footsteps of other classes as they were measured for caps and gowns.

discussed graduation credits, and chose invitations. They planned parties, chose a speaker, finally and sometimes tearfully accepted diplomas and congratulations.

Mike Ashby and Janis Long choose graduation announcements and try to determine how many they will need.

Junior Class Raises Funds for Banquet

The Junior class officers for 1966 were: Ronnie Rickman, treasurer, Sharon Streit, secretary, Ed Marsh, president, Susan Nowlin,

Vice president, and Mary Brown, secretary. These officers led their class through the year.

To raise money for the annual Junior-Senior Banquet and other important activities during the year, the junior class staged their traditional Italian spaghetti supper and sold programs during football season. Aiding the class as sponsors were Mr. Robert Orr, Mr. Irl Holt, Mrs. Lois Jo Selman, and Mrs. Peggy Bristo.

Class Strives to Attain Scholastic Goals

At times school can be trying. Here, Margaret Gibson, Mickey Shipman, and Sandra Holliday watch Mr. James Sturdivant grade their tests in order to see the final outcome of grades.

Mike Featherston explains the governmental process of the United States to his American history class. American history is the study of America's heritage.

The PEOPLE'S CHOICE

Lee Ann Blevins concentrates as she works to attain perfection. First year typing, especially, requires much practice and patience. Betsy Palmer is in the background.

Teachers Show Great Patience, Set Examples

Mrs. Alta Miller, Spanish teacher finds instruction vital.

Mrs. Faye Clark works tediously to complete grading papers before school begins and students arrive.

Mrs. Peggy Bristo believes explanation can be valuable and helpful.

Junior students became better acquainted with teachers they met during their sophomore year and found themselves growing accustomed to new teachers and subjects. At the same time they learned that in their new status more and better work was expected of them in subjects which included English, math, history, science, and electives.

Beginning the year together in the old building on Yamparika Street, juniors looked forward to the first full year in the new, modern building. They found themselves adjusting to pieshaped rooms in the circles (English and math), to no outside windows, to air-conditioned comfort, and to better teaching aids.

Realizing their influence, teachers showed traits the juniors already had learned to expect: knowledge of the way teen-agers act, skill in presenting material, and an unfailing supply of patience.

Faculty Enjoys New School With Students

Mrs. Judith Elliott, junior English teacher, points to one of the more difficult vocabulary words.

Chemistry teacher, Mr. James Sturdivant, makes a point while explaining the electron configuration.

Stopping test grading to pop a joke is typical of Mr. H. E. West, American history teacher.

Sophomores No Longer School's Youngest

secretary, and Bonnie Kidwell, reporter. These officers guided second year students through the first months of adjustments.

Making the adjustment into Senior High is one of the most difficult problems for Sophomores to face. Although they do elect officers and sponsors, the class meetings are rare. The sponsors, elected at the beginning of school, for the Sophomore class of 65-66 are: Miss Zelpha Booker, Mrs. Elizabeth Eure, and Mr. Charles Bursey, and Mr. Jerry Elbert.

Teachers and Students Band Together

College at Abilene with senior student and National Honor Society member, Jane Killibrew.

Librarian Mrs. Mildred Wall packs for the move with the help of library assistants Danny Young and Kay McBroom which took many weeks of work.

In School and Community Activities

Involved in worthwhile activities to further school and community efforts, faculty members and students worked together in curricular and extracurricular projects. Among the notable events were testing programs, helping above-average students get scholarships, the Student Council White Christmas, preparations to move into the new building, and helping civic clubs with programs.

Teachers and pupils involved in extracurricular activities gave time and effort beyond the classroom in guiding groups in community affairs such as the Drama Club-American Association of University Women production of "Hansel and Gretel." They furthered public relations through school publications. They asked and received community support in such activities as a car wash, football program sales, and the senior class play. Three clubs—Tri Hi-Y, Hi-Y, and Drama—banded together for the March of Dimes; faculty and students contributed to the Community Chest Drive. Typing classes addressed envelopes for the Christmas Seal drive. Students and civic leaders presented a county-wide program during Youth Appreciation Week.

Counselor Irl Holt gives directions for a test as Mr. Robert Orr, Mr. Charles Bursey, and Mrs. Agnes Russell listen.

Student Council members Betsy Palmer and Keith Holder pack White Christmas boxes as Mrs. Katherine Shivers watches with interest.

As an age old ritual, the act of buying and selling never lessens but expands with the rapid and enormous growth of industry, luxury, and necessity in modern life.

From the pioneering days of Mr. Doan's old general store to the modernistic trend of the twenties when our school was first built—to this ultra modern age in which we live. Vernon citizens have industrialized trade with an evergrowing demand in every phase of life for social and economic independence.

Students of our school certainly are a part of this social economy as they organize, plan, budget, and spend an enormous amount of money each year. When the Christmas season arrived, the best example of this was seen while students shopped with robust eagerness and displayed salesmanship techniques by having holiday employment.

Progress has made a great effect on business procedures and techniques since the days when the red brick school building was first built, but the businessmen and customers of Vernon patronize and welcome trade in the warmhearted way of the earlier merchants.

The 1965-66 Yamparika staff wishes to extend a sincere thanks to all local merchants who advertised in our yearbook.

With a festive spirit, seniors Doyle Close, Charlotte Townsen, Malinda Bell, and Ronnie Bourland exchange Christmas gifts.

The members of the 1966 Yamparika staff bid you an affectionate welcome as they enjoy the comfortable lobby of the Susie Q Restaurant. Pictured are Alan Brown, Susan Nowlin, Leanna Earth-
